In Memoriam

79 Craig Lance MICHALAK

(Stevenon), who built a successful commercial real estate business in Bellevue, Wash., and worked most recently at the North Carolina Institute for Public Health, died of leukoencephalopathy on August 20, 2007, in Chapel Hill, he was 59.

73 Raymond SEIDELMAN

(Cornell), a member of the Sarah Lawrence College politics faculty for 25 years who held the Sarah Edery Chair in Teaching Excellence, and who will be remembered for his passionate commitment to democracy and to social justice, died October 29, 2007, from complications due to cancer, he was 56.

74 Beverly CLARK Gallucci

(Cornell), a resident of Seattle who worked in corporate communications for the Boeing Company, died of ovarian cancer September 16, 2007.

75 Marjorie Ellen BAER (Porter), who had a long and productive career as an editor at Encyclopaedia Press and was a voracious reader, a talented artist, and a fine cook, died of brain cancer October 6, 2007, at her home in Berkeley, he was 53.

76 Steven GLOTZBACH (Keorge), who held a Ph.D. in neurosciences from Stanford University, worked for 25 years as a scientist and researcher in academic and business venues, and was also an accomplished musician, died March 26, 2007, he was 53.

78 Sharon Aiko YAGUCHI Miotke (Crown), who taught elementary school in Oakland, the Dominican Republic, and Arlington, Va., and was happiest teaching kids most in need throughout her career, died June 23, 2007, of pancreatic cancer, she was 39.

93 Katherine PEELING Falkerson

(College Eight), an animalkeeper with renowned credentials at the San Diego Wild Animal Park, died on June 29, 2007, after a six-year battle with metastatic breast cancer, she was 59.

92 Thomas BEATTY (College Eight), director of the outdoor recreation program for the Independent Living Center in Homer, Alaska, and a fly-fishing guide for Royal Wolf Lodge in Kerman National Park, died September 30, 2007, as a result of a floatplane accident, he was 58.

Remeberances are welcome at www.friendsofthecampus.blogspot.com.

It’s Never Too Late.

Maybe you were broke, saddled with student loans, or didn’t think it was cool.

DIPLOMA FRAMES

Is yours framed yet?

Times change. Preserve your graduate’s memories, or rekindle your own. It’s never too late.

slugstore.ucsc.edu

Serving the UC Santa Cruz campus community since 1996 831.459.4544

Graduation Memories

In Oakes College

86 J. Lee PARK is a family practitioner living and working in Coso Bay, Ore., and was colonel in the U.S. Army National Guard who has served in Iraq and Afghanistan. He’s married, has a wonderful two-year-old daughter, and enjoys surfing, windsurfing, and landscaping his yard in his spare time.

95 Kevin BROWN was coach of the Ivy Coast (Cote d’Ivoire) national basketball team in 2007.

90 Gerardo CAMPOS matriculated in 2000, had his first child in 2001, bought his first home in 2003, landed his current job in 2004, had his second child in spring of 2004, and bought his second piece of land in his native Mexico in 2005—‘it isn’t far from the definition of success,’ he says.

99 Akiva SCHAFFER is a writer for Saturday Night Live; and he has gained notoriety, along with buddies Andy Samberg and Jorma Taccone, for SNL Digital Shorts like Andy Samberg and Jorma Taccone, gained notoriety, along with buddies, and he has Saturday Night Live.

94 Karen GLASSMAN Naten teaches Spanish and social studies in Oakland, Ore.; she enjoys the outdoors, guitar and banjo-playing on the porch, participating in and leading groups during NaNoWriMo (National Novel Writing Month), and watching Golden Grit returns with her sweet husband, Nathan.

93 Elisheva MARCUS received her master of science degree in biomedical communications from the University of Toronto in 2005; she is now an art editor for Biology at Pearson Education’s Benjamin Cummings Publishers in San Francisco.

In College Eight

93 After bouncing around the planet, Jason FINCH has finished medical school and moved with his wife, Liberty, their five-year-old son, Sagi, and their latest addition, India, to the Seattle area.

94 Eric STREICH has been living in Los Angeles and working in the field of marketing; she is now in the second year of a master's degree program in urban planning at UCLA, focusing on transportation and green infrastructure.

93 Jessie BUSHHELL, who is pursuing a master’s degree in biological science at San Jose State University and works at the animal resource center supervisor at the San Francisco Zoo, was one of 14 students to receive 2007 dean’s scholarships from the San Jose State Alumni Association.

92 Chris GALE is a top salesman at Revolve Media, an online advertising integration and optimization company headquartered in San Francisco; before joining Revolve, he was a salesman at WildTrends and ClockShift and he co-founded Dimension0, an events and activities company.

In Graduate Studies

77 Miguel FURMAN (Ph.D. physics) has been elected a Fellow of the American Physical Society for his pioneering development and application of simulation tools for the brain-beam and electron cloud effects in colliders and storage rings; he is a physicist at Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory.

77 Mark PIERCE (Ph.D. law) assumption of an astronomer with the Carnegie Institution of Washington, and 19 other astronomers, all members of the High-Supemova Search Team, were awarded the 2007 Cosmology Prize of the Press and Patricia Goodwin Foundation for their role in discovering that the universe is expanding at an accelerating rate.

79 Judith TOBMAN Purniah (Ph.D. Earth sciences; M.S. Earth sciences) has the Scaredy cat and Earth Sciences, Crown 72; a professor of geological sciences at the University of Idaho, is vice president of the Geological Society of America; in July 2008 she will become the society’s president.

78 Ronnie Anne KING (Ph.D. literature) has published her first book of poetry, Sunbathers, Swimmers (Hummingbird Press). 79 Clarence LOW (M.S. marine sciences; B.A. anthropology, Crown), recently opened a Denver office for his web-design business, which he started in Monterey, Calif., he has two sons born in Everett, Colo.

76 David SONGNENFEFF (Ph.D. sociology) is a professor and chair of the Department of Environmental Studies in the College of Environmental Science and Forestry at the State University of New York in Syracuse.

72 Ann Aurelia LOPEZ (Ph.D. environmental studies) was a U.S. Office of the President postdoctoral fellow at UC Berkeley in the Department of Environmental Science, Policy and Management from 2004 to 2006; her book The Faroese Journey was published by UC Press in 2007. She is currently a research associate with the Center for Agroecology and Sustainable Food Systems at UCSC and is in the process of establishing a nonprofit organization on behalf of Central Coast farmlands.

74 Krinos CHERNY (Ph.D. anthropology) has published a book, Pilots of the Natives’ Child Criminal and Ugandan National Development (University of Chicago Press, 2007), she’s an assistant professor of anthropology at the University of Dayton.

75 Shannon FOWLER (Ph.D. biology) was selected to be a 2007 summer intern at National Public Radio, where she worked for the science desk researching and writing articles for NPR’s web site. Adam SIEGFELD (Ph.D. computer science), an assistant professor of biogical statistics and computational biology at Cornell University, has received a Packard Fellowship for Science and Engineering. He will use the five-year $625,000 unrestricted fellowship to continue his research on mammalian genomes.

76 Maxwell BOYKOFF (Ph.D. environmental studies) is a James Marine 21st Century Research Fellow at the Environmental Change Institute at the Oxford University Centre for the Environment.